Lucie Bergeron
Art Every Day / Every Day Art

With a job, a family, volunteer commitments, and a multitude of interests, finding time to pursue artistic interests can be challenging for Lucie Bergeron. Over the years, Lucie has been able to weave her work as an artist into her daily life. Rethinking what she believed she needed in order to work (space, focus, uninterrupted time) all which were unavailable to her, Lucie learned to work in short spurts, interspersed with everything that goes along in a busy household. This new way of working influenced her art practice, evolving the look of her work and allowing her the satisfaction of pursuing creativity whenever a small moment arises.

Canada Is...
(1000 Reasons We Love Canada)

This evolving exhibition showcases our community's love for Canada. Everyone is encouraged to participate by creating a work of art to hang on our gallery walls. Free 6" x 6" canvases and wood boards will be available throughout the summer for visitors to create and

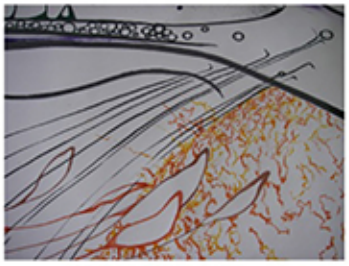
Nina Mudry
Written Connections

The longstanding art of letter writing is said to be dying in light of our current technology. When was the last time we sent a message through the mail to a friend or loved one? Using letters sent to and from the Artist, as well as letters sourced from family and friends, Mudry brings forth the stories and people that are found within and behind the letters.

Memory Uglene
All in a Day



"All in a Day" is an abstract drawing which intends to reflect the shifting sands of experience in a day. The work, somewhat reflecting a large doodle, depicts thoughts, impressions, and changing emotions as experienced from night and moving into the day.
